Jessie Nebraska Gifford's first one woman show of sculpture, "Fragrance Free: A Study of Botanical Architecture, will open at A.I.R. Gallery on January 23rd and run through February 10th.

The show's subtitle describes the 14 pieces of sculpture. Each is a highly imaginative flower constructed of wire mesh, plaster wrap, brightly colored with oil.

Gifford says the show was generated by French artist Berthe Morisot's statement that artists like flowers need room to breathe.

A.I.R. Gallery is at 40 Wooster Street. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 11am to 6pm.
