A.I.R. Gallery, the world's first women's cooperative art gallery, is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary. Since the gallery's beginning artists who were not having one-person exhibitions that gallery season have had a group show in January.

Diyan Achjadi, Regina Granne, Barbara Grinell, Louise Kramer, Sylvia Netzer, Ann Pachner, Beatrice Riese, Carol Ross, Elke Solomon, Nancy Storrow, and Janise Yntema will be showing their work in CURRENTS. The title refers to what the individual artists are currently working on and the flow, direction, tendency, and trend in their thinking.

The group show affords the gallery artists an opportunity to place what they are developing in their studio into a public context. For the past several years each artist has made a brief presentation to the group and to the public on the last afternoon of the exhibition. This makes for an exchange of ideas and a further understanding of each artist's work. The public is encouraged to join in the discussion.
